Address of the Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of Nfld.

Delivered at the Opening of the Twenty-fifth Biennial Session of the Diocesan Synod, Wednesday, June 21st, 1922.

My Brethren of the Clergy and Laity:

Though the Kingdom, in the interests of which we are here assembled, is not of this world, yet the world is the field of its operations, the people in this world are its care, its potential citizens, whose welfare both in regard to their temporal affairs as in the sphere of their spiritual progress, is its first and chief concern. The Kingdom, that is the Church of Jesus Christ, cannot even begin to consider the advancement of its highest interests without taking cognizance of the conditions which obtain in its more extended environment. The state of human society constitutes at one and the same time a challenge, a rebuke, a hope, a despair, a door of opportunity, a task to be faced, a victory to be won.

The world registers the Church's enterprises, its vision or its lack of vision, its energy or its sloth. Now, it has or seems to have, an open ear, ready to catch eagerly whatever word or promise or of help the Church proclaims. Now it seems to question every word that claims authoritative utterance, as from a higher power. And now it makes some pathetic appeal for an answer to questions which it feels itself utterly unable to solve.

This is the position to-day in various parts of our distracted world. Over wide areas there is an epidemic of disorder, of distress, of uncertainty, and men and nations are groping about in the Egyptian darkness which enshrouds them, longing for light, and saying as they watch the failure of this and that scheme for the amelioration of human ills, "Who will show us any good?"

The time has, apparently, not yet arrived when the leading men in great nations and great movements will be ready to admit the fundamental error which has done more than anything besides to breed chaos amongst nations and peoples. I mean the "difference of concept upon the idea of God," and the place He should occupy in human thought and action. In a recent work entitled "Labour, the giant with the feet of clay," written by Mr. Shaw Desmond, the statement is made "that the great war has (already) tried to teach . . . the lesson that nationality and national conceptions play one of the major parts in the division of mankind. Man has yet to learn that there is something even still deeper, more inevitable in its effects, and that is the outlook of human beings upon the things that lie beyond the material." And the writer adds, "one is not here speaking of theological differences. Nor is one denying that some of the noblest and finest men and women who have existed have believed themselves quite sincerely to be helping humanity by 'fighting the idea of God' in the sense of theological definition, though such men and women, nominally materialist, have actually taken the spiritual view of life and living, and have been unconsciously 'on the side of the angels.' But what one is speaking of is the fundamental irreconcilable difference between the materialist proper with his goal of fleshly or purely intellectual satisfactions, and the anti-materialist, between that overwhelming mass . . . which steadily trends to a material conception of existence, and that minority, which regards the body as of little importance by the side of the soul, and only urges the care of the former in order that it may be a more worthy vehicle of the latter."

Speaking in his introduction of the small minority who have discovered that the god they had made for themselves had feet of clay the writer remarks "the men and women who are coming will not make that mistake—a god with feet of clay will not be their God. Coming from such a source the words I have quoted are at least suggestive. They imply that there are some—a small but an increasing number—who see that the only hope for the future of this disordered world is a return to the principles of the Christian Faith; for only in them can be found the true secret of real human progress and betterment.

It is neither a pleasant nor a comforting task, however, to be called upon to match the apparently puny forces of believers in Christ against the largely hostile world. Only an unquenchable faith can view the prospect without alarm and without despair. To have a growing consciousness of the seriousness of the struggle involved: to face the facts as they are presented to us by friend and foe alike to be under no illusion as to the resistance the Church will meet with is only to be guided by common prudence and the dictates of common sense.

To some of you it may seem to be both unwise and unnecessary to paint this dark background into the picture of the Church's Diocesan life. What purpose can it serve? It may be asked. Perhaps this question can best be answered by asking another question: "What constitutes one of our greatest dangers as a Diocese? Is it not our isolation? Not merely a geographical isolation—though this has its weakening effect—but our isolation from the life of other parts of our communion which is in contact with world problems in every quarter of the globe. Though our Bishop looks to the Chair of Augustine and pays allegiance to its occupant, for all practical purposes this Diocese stands alone—it is independent of any province, its peculiar position constitutes its greatest weakness and is the source of its sorest temptations. It must seek ever to save itself from falling by remembering the duty it owes to the whole Anglican Communion throughout the world. If this duty were to be lost sight of some compromising step might be taken in matters of faith and order, some irretrievable error committed that might work disaster far beyond the narrow boundaries of our own Diocese. Hence the fortunes and the problems of the whole Church with which we are linked up by ties of parentage and tradition and derived life, are our intimate concern. No thought of dissociation with or disregard for the great body in its trials, its hopes, and its aspirations can be thought possible. As an outpost of this great spiritual empire it is our duty to keep watch and ward, to build and to defend, to add strength, so far as that is given us, to the whole commonwealth of the Kingdom of Christ.

It is of course true to say that the redemption of society is not necessarily committed to the Anglican Communion only, nor are we so blind to facts as to claim that only through this Apostolic body can men be brought to know the truth that makes them free. But it is equally true to say that it would be sheer disloyalty to the great trust committed to us did we not aim at making common cause with the communion to which we belong in its widespread enterprises in all lands. I am sure that we have no desire to become self-centred, to allow our sympathies to be cramped within Diocesan boundaries, or to seek only for the means by which our own needs may be supplied. If our own home field must claim our first attention—and of necessity this is unavoidable—we shall not regard it as the sole claimant upon our sympathies and our thoughts and prayers. We shall have in mind our corporate union with the larger body. And inasmuch as through that larger body our contact with the whole Catholic Church of Christ is brought about and maintained, so the problems which face the whole Christian world are seen to be our problems too, and these form the necessary background against which our local and Diocesan efforts and deliberations group themselves.

Here is the justification, for the method of approach to the questions to be brought before our Synod, which I have adopted, and I have hope that the call to lift our eyes to wider horizons than those which bound our Diocesan life will enable us to view our own problems in the broad light of the Church's responsibility to men of every clime and kindred and tongue.

THE SPECIFIC DUTIES OF THE SYNOD.

In view of what I have already stated, let us proceed to think more particularly of what may be regarded as some of the specific duties of our Synod. The Synod is the governing body of the Church in Newfoundland; and one of its fundamental principles is that it "shall continue as heretofore in spiritual union and communion, with the Church of England." The Synod recognizes and accepts the Canon of Holy Scripture, as received by the Church of England, as the rule and standard of Christian Faith; and acknowledges the Book of Common Prayer and Administration of the Sacraments, together with the Thirty-nine Articles of Religion of that Church, to be a true and faithful declaration of doctrines contained in Holy Scripture; and maintains the threefold order of the Christian ministry—Bishops, Priests and Deacons—as Scriptural and Apostolic; and it is the object of the Synod, in dependence on Divine aid, to preserve those doctrines and that form of Church order and to transmit them to posterity.

All that follows in subsequent chapters of our Constitution and Rules has one object in view, viz., the carrying out of, or giving effect to the great fundamental principles on which the Synod rests. Every chapter of our Constitution is intended to serve one purpose, viz., to enable the Church of England in this Diocese to bear its witness in Communion with the whole Church, to the people committed to its charge. It is a well-defined purpose, to which limits are set by the very terms in which its principles are set forth. The subjects which rightly come within the Synod's purview are limited to such matters as have as their object the furtherance of the special functions of our Church. The Synod is under no obligation to go outside those functions and to usurp authority which belongs to other bodies. It makes no claim to authority to legislate in purely secular matters which have no necessary bearing upon its work as part of a spiritual society, nor does it wish to impose its authority upon those who acknowledge no allegiance to it. But on the other hand it cannot recognize the right of any other body to dictate to it as to the policy it shall pursue in matters which have to do with its spiritual and moral responsibilities to its people.

It matters which come within its proper sphere the Synod is the supreme authority in the Diocese; and if its field of operations is restricted, within well-defined limits, it is so limited in order to enable it to deal more effectively with its own proper duties.

There are doubtless many important questions in which members of the Church of England are very appropriately interested; but for obvious reasons such questions cannot be introduced into our agenda, nor are we as a Synod called to pronounce upon them. We have our own work to do, and it demands all the thought, and all the time we are capable of giving to it in the few days at our disposal.

THE RECENT CENSUS.

The Diocese should not be regarded chiefly as consisting of so many miles of territory to be covered, but in the light of the number of persons it contains, for whom we as a Church are directly responsible. The recent Census forces this point of view into special prominence and must supply cause for serious heart-searching on the part of members of this body.

Though complete returns are not available as yet, the courts of revision in the various districts have enabled the Clergy to obtain fairly accurate figures of the population of their respective localities. These figures should prove valuable in enabling the clergy to ascertain how far their own private records of Church people have been kept up-to-date. They will be useful too in discovering for us isolated families who have been lost sight of, and also whether or not there are stretches of 'no man's land,' containing Church families at present unsheltered, and in danger of being lost to the Church. As a Church we should examine our heart and conscience, and some of our methods in the light of facts which the Census reveals. In recent years there has been a noticeable tendency towards abandoning old settlements and to make homes in new localities where timber and fuel are obtainable, or perhaps where more fertile land is to be had. A gradual shifting of population has taken place, and this is still going on. Whilst in some districts we have made some attempt to meet these changing conditions in others we have not. The result has, I fear, been that a steady leaking has been in progress; people whom we have not followed up have been absorbed by other bodies whose methods in this respect have been more practical than ours. Whatever the cause of defection may be the loss of people from the Church can never be regarded with complacency; it is a real disaster, and if any plan can be devised to minimize such losses in the future it is to be hoped that it will receive the

The Mills of the Gods Or A Heart's Deception

CHAPTER IX.
The Plenie.

"You will do nothing of the kind," he says. "I am not going to impose upon your good nature, Miss Leslie. Besides, I dare say, I shall take forty winks."

Leslie hesitates a moment, then she gets up and goes for the case; but Yorke is too quick for her.

"Come along, Mr. Leslie," he says, touching him on the arm, while he stands looking from the edge of the tower absent, and the three descend.

"Now, this strikes me as a good place," says Yorke, setting up the case. "Don't know much about it you know, but it seems to me that the outline and the—"

"Excellent; yes, very good," assents the artist, eagerly getting out his drawing paper. "Yes, I can make a picture of this. You need not wait," he adds. "You will want to talk and—"

"I see," says Yorke. "Come along, Miss Leslie; we're evidently not wanted."

They stroll away side by side, and slowly descend the grassy slope, which gradually becomes broken by rock, which kindly nature, who has always an eye to effect, has clothed with ferns and moss and linchen.

"I suppose I ought to show you the hermit's cell?" says Leslie.

"Everybody sees it."

"By all means," he assents, but rather absently—the loud laugh of Finetta, the music-hall song are still echoing hideously in his ears.

"Which hermit?"

"Didn't you know?" she says, lightly stepping from stone to stone.

"There was a hermit here once ever so long ago. Here is his cell," and she stops before a cavity in the rocks a deliciously shady nook, overhung with honeysuckle and wild clematis which perfume the air.

Yorke looks in. Somebody since the hermit's time, had been kind enough to fix a comfortable seat in the little cell, from which a delightful view of the sea and the cliff can be obtained.

"Let us sit down while you tell me about him," he says.

Leslie seats herself, and looks out at the greenery at her feet and wide-stretching blue of sea and sky beyond; and he takes his place beside her, but looks at her instead of the view. "The proper study of mankind is—woman."

"There really was a hermit here ever so long ago," she says, dreamily.

"They talk of him at Portmaris even now. He was a very great man in his time, but I am afraid not a very good one. It is said that he killed his best friend in a duel, and that, smitten with remorse for his crime and his foolish life, he vowed that he would never set eyes on mortal man again. So he came and lived in this cell, which he dug out with his own hands, and spent the rest of his life in prayer and meditation. Every day the village folks, and sometimes the pilgrims who visited his shrine, placed food on the ledge of the little window; but though they could hear his voice in prayer or singing hymns, no one ever saw his face, nor did he ever look out upon those who came to visit him."

"He must have been fearfully unhappy," says Yorke, in a voice, for the soft, subdued tones seem to cast a spell over him.

"No, they say not; for he was often heard, especially after he had been living here for some years, to be singing cheerfully; but that was after he had received his sign."

"His sign?" he asks.

Dr. Chase's Ointment

"Yes. He prayed that if heaven forgave him his sins, and accepted his penitence, it would render the birds tame enough to come to his cell."

"And did they?"

"Yes. The pilgrims to the shrine often saw a thin hand thrust thru the window with a hedge sparrow or thrush perched upon it, and the rabbits, there were numbers of them, here, would come when he called, and let him feed them with the remains of his frugal fare. One day the village people received no answer when they called to him, not even the Pax Vobiscum, which amply repaid them for their pious charity. They waited two days, and then they entered the cell, and found him lying dead on his stone pallet, and a wild dove was lying on his breast. It flew away as they entered, but it was seen hovering about the cell for years afterward, and the Portmaris people say that a dove is always near here, even now."

If Yorke had read the story of the Hermit of St. Martin in a book—he didn't read many books, unfortunately—it would not have affected him at all, but told by this lovely girl, in a voice hushed with sympathetic awe and reverence, it moves him strangely.

"It's a pity there are not more hermits," he says, "a pity a man can't leave the world in which he has made himself such a nuisance, and have a little time to be quiet and repent."

"Yes, your grace," assents Leslie.

He looked at her quickly, and then away to the sea again.

"I wonder whether you'd be offended if I asked a favor of you, Miss Leslie."

"What is it?" she says, lightly. "In the old times the proper reply was 'Yes, unto half my kingdom,' but I haven't any kingdom."

"Oh, it isn't much," he says. "I was only going to ask you if you would be kind enough not to address me as 'your grace.'"

Leslie looks at him with her slow smile, and a faint blush.

"Is it wrong?" she asks, apologetically. "I didn't know. You see, I have not met many dukes."

He strikes the sandy pebbles which form the floor of the good hermit's cave, with his stick.

"Oh—oh, it's right enough to call a duke 'your grace,'" he says, hurriedly, "but I'd rather you didn't call me so."

"I'm glad it was right," she rejoins, with an air of some awful blunder.

"No, no," he says. "But don't please. I have a decided objection to it. You see I'm rather a republican than otherwise—everybody is a republican nowadays, don't you know?"

Oh, Yorke, Yorke! "There will be no dukes or any other titles presently."

"But until that time arrives what should one call you?" asks Leslie, not unreasonably. "Is 'my lord' right?"

"It's better," he admits, "but I don't care much about that from friends, you know. I'm afraid you think it's rather presumptuous of me to call you a friend."

"An enemy" would sound rude and ungraceful after your and Mr. Temple's kindness," she says, as lightly as before.

"My name is Yorke—one of 'em, and it's the name I like best. I dare say that you have noticed that Mr. Mr. Temple calls me by it?"

"Yes," says Leslie.

"So it sounds more familiar to me, and—"

"I suppose a man has a right to be called what he likes."

"I imagine so," says Leslie.

"Then that's a bargain," he says, cheerfully, as if the matter were disposed of. "This place," he goes on, as if anxious to get away from the subject, "reminds me of Scotland a little bit. You only want a salmon river. I spent many a day fishing and shooting in a solitude as complete as the hermit's. You get scared at last by the stillness and the silence, and begin to think that all creation has gone to sleep, and are afraid to move lest you should wake it; and then while you stand quite still beside the stream, something comes flitting down the mountain side—something with great antlers and big mournful eyes, and it steps into the water close beside you, and takes a drink, looking round watchfully. Then up you jump and give a shout, and away the stag goes, and all creation's awake again."

It is Leslie's turn to listen now, and she does so with half-parted lips.

"Then at night you go out with a gun, and you lie down flat amongst the bracken, and keep your eyes open and after a while when you are just feeling tired of it, and thinking what an idiot you are not to be in bed, or at any rate beside a cozy fire with a pipe, you hear a flap, flap in the air, and a couple of herons come sailing between you and the moon, and you raise your gun carefully and quickly—awfully sharp chap the heron—and down comes one of 'em, and perhaps, if you have any luck, the other with the second barrel. Then you load up again and wait, and after a time, if your luck holds good, a flock of duck come flipperty, flapperty, above your head and you bring one or two of them down. And all the time the steam ripples and bubbles on, and the soft wind plays through the pines, and—"

He stops with a laugh and that peculiar look which expresses shyness in a man. "I beg your pardon, I forgot: I mean, I must be boring you to death."

"No, you were not," says Leslie, quietly, and with a little sigh.

"I forgot that ladies don't care for sport, except hunting, some of them. They like to hear about London, and all the gossip there."

Leslie shakes her head.

"I'm afraid I'm very singular, then," she says. "For I would rather hear about fishing and shooting, if it is all like that you have been telling me of."

"But it isn't," he says, with a laugh. "Sometimes the birds don't come, and the fish won't rise, and instead of catching any you catch a cold. And then you go back to London, and swear that it's the best place after

South Africa is sharing the common lot and must, of necessity, exercise economy. In his Budget speech of May 5, Mr. Burton, Minister of Finance, emphasised the necessity for balancing revenue and expenditure by a reduction in the expenditure and not by taxation. There was a deficit on the estimates for 1921-22

The estimated revenue for the year 1922-23 amounted to £27,900,000 and the estimated expenditure to £28,718,000. The deficit, less loan revenues, land sales, and mining losses amounting to £649,000 would leave a net deficit for the year 1922-23 of £403,000. Mr. Burton announced new estate and succession duties which were expected to yield £195,000. This would reduce the deficit to £208,000, which would be left to look after itself. In the opinion of Mr. Burton, the banking situation showed material improvement, and trade had increased during the past year.

QUEEN'S COLLEGE.
The question of the supply and training of men for the sacred ministry has received special emphasis from two directions during the biennial period. In the first place an unusual number of vacancies have arisen, and secondly the campaign on behalf of Queen's College has been steadily maintained and has met with gratifying success notwithstanding the general depression which has prevailed. The success achieved has been brought about mainly by the unflinching efforts of the Principal, Rev.
Dr. Facey, whose enthusiasm has been met by a sympathetic response on the part of the clergy and their flocks. The Report of the College Council will give detailed information regarding contributions, and I need not enlarge upon this point now; but I cannot refrain from an expression of gratitude I feel for the splendid support given to the movement by a multitude of the clergy whose example has inspired their congregation to subscribe to the fund of very adverse conditions.

As the days pass the extreme importance of keeping our own Theological Institution open becomes more manifest. If Dr. Facey's carefully considered plans can be brought to maturity the Diocese will possess an Institute freed from the menace of threatened extinction, and at the same time more efficiently equipped to train men either to enter the ministry as soon as they have completed their course at this College, or to enter one of the English Universities for a period of further study before they are ordained. The Church people of Newfoundland are making no mistake when they invest either a large or a small sum in the Queen's College Fund. The Church of the future will,
I believe, justify our action in saving and strengthening a College that has long since proved its value to the Diocese.

THE SUPPORT THE LIVING AGENT
The difficulty—I might almost say the impossibility—of filling vacancies in the ranks of the clergy does not stand alone. The provision of a living wage is a present and pressing problem. It is, I presume, known to you all that since the close of 1920, when the Diocese ceased to receive aid from the S.P.C., it has received nothing from any outside source towards the payment of the stipends of our clergy. We voluntarily reliquished such aid as the S.P.C. had been supplying for so many years, and it is not now contemplated that any assistance from without the Diocese is to be hoped for. We have to depend upon ourselves.

In 1920 not only were we courageous enough to say we could live without the S.P.C. Grant but we proceeded to level up stipends considerably,
or at least we passed such legislation
as would supply, so it was hoped, the necessary funds for the purpose.
Since 1918 there had been a large increase in the Home and Foreign Mission Fund, and having regard to the increased cost of living the Executive Committee had felt justified in interpreting the powers given it under the Assessment Act in a liberal manner and had raised the stipends as far as was possible. But to ensure a continuance of this policy it was necessary to secure largely increased contributions, and consequently the Assessment per capita was increased.
At the same time, and for a like purpose, the qualification of a parish was raised to $1500.

Perhaps no one foresaw at the time
the likelihood of such serious financial depression and dislocation of the usual sources of revenue as has since arisen, but looking back it appears unfortunate that the proposed increase in expenditure should have coincided with the financial depression, for without doubt the effect of our legislation has been to discourage and dishearten rather than the opposite. Notably has this been so in the case of smaller parishes falling vacant; and in proof of this statement I may say that particularly all parishes which have become vacant since have failed to qualify and have been unable to elect Rectors, and only temporary provision, if any, has been made for serving them.

THE DIOCESAN BUDGET
I have not thus far made any reference to the Budget Plan introduced at last Synod; but I regard its due operation as of vital importance to our financial stability. Its working has a direct bearing upon the question of stipends. It was to my mind unfortunate that we were unable to launch this system until late in 1921, and in the circumstances it is not to be wondered at that the total income derived from this source fell considerably below our anticipations. The result has been that the Executive Committee found it impossible to maintain the stipends of clergy in charge of Missions at the

This is regrettable but it was unavoidable.

The Synod will be wise, I think, in giving fuller consideration than was possible last Synod both to the better working out of the Budget Plan and the question of the qualification of parishes. It is obvious, in regard to the latter, that a continuance of the present unsatisfactory situation ought not to be contemplated. Temporary arrangements are not satisfactory either to clergy or people and to compel all parishes that cannot give a guarantee of $1500 to revert to the status of missions would,
I feel, be a retrograde step. And what is perhaps of more serious consequence, our financial condition is such as to render the taking over of the responsibility of financing a number of new missions at this juncture entirely out of the question.

GRADED PARISHES
In speaking of parishes it seems to me that our present rule as to qualifications is anomalous, and operates unfairly. Is it equitable that a parish of (say) 700 or 800 people should be expected to guarantee the same sum
as a parish of two or three times that number. Or, why should large and small parishes pay the same stipend? A modification of our Rule giving it more elasticity seems to be desirable. A less rigid arrangement would encourage small localities to attain to a larger measure of self-help, and render them more independent of assistance from the rest of the Diocese.

MOBILIZING OUR RESOURCES
In order to assist the clergy and their Finance Committees in raising both the Church Dues and Assessments for the Budget last fall I asked several of the Clergy to place themselves at my disposal to act as delegations to such parishes and mission-as needed assistance. The Clergy readily responded and the majority of them were able to carry through the work they were asked to undertake.

From the reports which they made to me subsequently I gather that their visits were cordially received and were productive of much good.
Owing, however, to the lateness of the season when the visits were undertaken the effect upon the Budget collections and Church Dues received was not so conspicuous as it might have been had the visits been made at an earlier date. We hope that this year's returns will show that the work undertaken was well worthwhile. But in my judgment it will be necessary to follow up this effort, for fuller information than many of our congregations have at present is necessary both in regard to the financial needs of the Diocese and how the Budget is designed to meet them.

An idea seems to prevail in some quarters that a congregation is free either to reject or to adopt the Diocesan Budget System as it sees fit. This erroneous idea must be dissipated. It is not sufficient that a parish or mission should consider only its own needs—how the services of its own local Church and the support of its own clergyman shall be secured. Parishes and missions must be made to realize that they owe an obligation to the Diocese and that they must bear their share of Diocesan obligations.
Returns received from some quarters show that the urgency of Diocesan needs is not very well understood, and in consequence nothing like the response possible on the part of many,
even in the present depressed state of affairs, has been made.

It is evident that before we can hope to receive the money so urgently needed fuller information must be given, and more adequate means adopted to secure the support which the majority of the people can contribute in some measure.

How is this help to be enlisted? We could continue the plan adopted last year and send delegations, and much good would be accomplished. But is there nothing more that we can do?
It seems to me that our great weakness in this regard is lack of proper organization. Parishes and missions need to be organized on well-thought-out plans in order that their resources
may be brought into the Church treasury. And organization of this kind needs more or less expert treatment. All the clergy do not feel that they have the special qualifications needed for such work. Moreover, it requires more time than the average clergyman can give outside his own parish. If it be argued that such organization must necessarily imply increased expenditure my reply is that such expenditure would be more than justified by the increased returns received. To place the Diocese on a sound financial footing de-

Proceedings of the Synod

June 28, 1922.

AFTERNOON SESSION.
The House met at 3.30, the Lord Bishop presiding, and reading the opening prayers.

The minutes of the previous session
were read and confirmed.

Rev. Canon Bolt moved the Report of the Ordination Candidates Council, which on being duly seconded was adopted.

Rev. Canon Bolt moved the adoption of the Report of the Managers of the Diocesan Sustentation Fund, which on being duly seconded was agreed.

Mr. J. J. Long gave notice to ask
Mr. Brien Dunfield to lay on the table of the House all correspondence relating to the employment of the staff of Bishop Spencer College, the dismissal, retirement or resignation of any member of the staff; also the Minutes of the Board of Directors relating to the same and any report of Miss Richards, relative to the teaching staff for the good and future welfare of the College. The above correspondence, etc., to be from the time Miss Richards was appointed Headmistress of Bishop Spencer College up to the time of her resignation.

Rev. J. T. Richards gave notice that he would on to-morrow draw the attention of the Synod to the work of Dr. Grenfell in Northern Newfoundland and Labrador, and move a resolution.

The House resumed its debate on the adoption of the Report of the Literature Committee. Several members expressed opinions of the very satisfactory character of the Diocesan Magazine under its new management, and of its increasing usefulness to church people. The main problem in connection with the Magazine is, however, the problem of financing it, and a suggestion was thrown out that a limited liability company be formed to carry on this useful Diocesan publication. At this stage the Report of the Literature Committee was adopted.

Rev. Canon Bayly then moved and it was duly seconded that a Select Committee be appointed to consider this question of the formation of a limited liability company in connection with the Magazine, and to report at as early a date as possible to this Synod. Agreed. The Committee nominated and approved by the House comprise the following, viz: Rev.
Canon Smart, Canon Bayly, Messrs.
G. J. Adams, A. L. Barrett, Geo. A.
Bartlett.

Pursuant to notice, Dr. Blackall moved his resolution that the Synod request the Legislature to increase the number of Directors of the Church of England Colleges, so that representatives from the outports and women may be included; and that a Bill may be introduced into this Synod to give effect to this resolution. On being seconded the motion was put to the House, and on division
was lost.

The House resumed the debate on the motion of Rev. W. R. J. Higgin relating to the question of the enforcement of law and order especially in connection with the Prohibition Act,
and of the Resolution in amendment of Rev. J. T. Hiscock to ask the Government for a referendum on this question. The matter was debated by many members until the closing hour,
when on motion, seconded and carried, the whole subject was deferred.

On motion, duly seconded, the House adjourned.

EVENING SESSION.

The House resumed at 8 o'clock.
The Select Committee appointed in connection with the proposed amendment to Chap. I and Chap. VII of the Constitution and Rules concerning the franchise to women, reported that: "Having considered the matter to which it was entrusted the Committee are of opinion that the qualification for speaking and voting should be the same for women as for men."

On motion, duly seconded, the Report was adopted.

Rev. Canon Jeeves moved the House into committee of the whole on the Report on the Bill brought in by the Select Committee. On being seconded this was agreed.

The House went into Committee.
It was moved, seconded and carried that the report be adopted. Agreed.
It was moved, seconded and carried that the committee rise and report the Bill passed without amendment.

Canon Jeeves gave notice that he would on to-morrow move that the bill be read a third time and passed.
The House resumed its debate on the adoption of the report of the directors of the Church of England Colleges.

At 9 o'clock the debate was interrupted by the election of Executive Committee of the Synod, of which
His Lordship the Bishop gave notice

Feildians Defeat Saints

SCORE 5-1

The Feildians defeated the Saints in last evening's game by a score of 5 goals to 1.

The Saints played a much better game than the results would indicate but their defence was weak. Their forwards, however, pressed their opponents hard throughout the first half but did no scoring and the teams changed over without a goal having having been netted on either side.

In the second half the Feildians rushed the Scotsmen and sent in shot
after shot to Joyce, scoring five goals.

The Feildians, however, kept up a determined offensive and the Saints back division was kept busy during the remainder of the game, and despite their efforts to save the situation the Feildians added two more goals to their credit. Winter and Jerrett doing the needful and the game concluded with Feildians 5, Saints 1.

The game this evening will be between the Highlanders and Star, and as both teams are very evenly matched a close contest should result.

last evening, and appointed Messrs.
W. N. Gray, George House, C. B.
Dicks and W. J. Martin, to be scrutineers for the counting of the ballots. At 9.10 o'clock the scrutineers presented the result of the election to His Lordship the Bishop, who announced that the following had been elected and that the Executive during the coming Biennial period would comprise the following, viz:—His Lordship the Bishop, ex-officio; the Rev. Canon Bolt, M.A., D.C.L., ex-officio; Rev. Canon Bayly, M.A.; Rev.
Canon Smart, Rev. Canon Jeeves, M.
A., Rev. Canon Field, Rev. E. C. Earp,
B.A., Rev. N. S. Facey, M.A., L.L.D., J. R. Bennett, Esq., W. W. Blackall,
B.A., D.C.L., Sir W. H. Horwood, C.
E. Hunt, Esq., A. B. Morine, Esq.,
K.C.; C. Outerbridge, Esq., T. Winter
Esq., the Hon. M. G. Winter.

The debate on the Colleges was then resumed and occupied the attention of the House until 10.30, the closing hour, when His Lordship pronounced the Benediction.

Accident on Ranger

SEAMAN RALPH HAS LEG BROKEN.

The Coastal Department received the following wireless yesterday from Capt. Jacob Kean of the S. S. Ranger which took down the Labrador crew:
"Tuesday 3 p.m. Now passing Grady.
Arrived Holton Saturday morning.
Coast clear of ice to that point, little ice outside. Saturday morning Wm. J.
Ralph, seaman, had his leg broken.
One hour later landed him at Indian Harbor hospital under care of Dr.
Padden. Landed freight and passengers, all well." The Ranger is now on her way south.

of the late Fr. Troy, who was buried in the old Church at Torbay some 60 years ago, will be removed from its present resting place to the new Church which has been recently completed. The body and the casket, when taken up some time ago were found to be in a remarkable state of preservation after so long a time. The cermony will take place at 11 a.m. and High Mass will be sung by the Rev. Fr.
Ashley after which the remains of the beloved Priest will be re-interred.
It is expected that a large number of visitors from the city will be present.

Up to the Exporters

The reception which Mr. Coaker's letter received from the general public yesterday shows that his action in offering to assist any scheme to obtain better returns for our codfish is appreciated, and the onus is put on the Exporters to make the next move. Mr. Coaker has said that he will not take the lead in the matter, thus disarming at once the fear of the Exporters that they would be rushed into Regulations. Mr. Coaker has no need to be ashamed of the Regulations of 1920. The price of fish was kept up during that period, and fell to half when the Regulations were dropped. The whole country now realizes that the greatest crime in the political and economic history of the Colony was committed when the effect of the Fish Regulations was nullified by the scandalous criticism of Tory newspapers and irresponsible politicians. The Regulations were not permitted to function, but today the very men who worked hardest to smash them are the men who acknowledge that the principle behind the Regulations is the only one which can govern the proper disposal of our fish.

The story of the rescinding of the Regulations has not been forgotten. Cargoes of fish which could have sold for 50 shillings per quintal, were sacrificed at 25 shillings. And when Mr. Coaker made outright sale of hundreds of thousands of quintals of fish in Portugal, the agreement was criticised and condemned to an extent that was heart-breaking. But Mr. Coaker has not lost hope. He knows that his ideas must be adopted some day, and that is why he puts it up to the Exporters to take action in order to save themselves and the country. Will they do it?

Passing of Mr. H. F. Bradshaw

"A life of honor and of worth
Has no eternity on earth."

Henry F. Bradshaw, than whom St. John's could boast of no more worthy citizen, passed to his eternal reward to-day at the age of 81 years.

Deceased was born in Placentia, the son of the late Dr. Francis Bradshaw who settled in the ancient capital during the early part of the last century, he in turn being the son of a surgeon in the Royal Navy.

Coming to St. John's as a young man, Mr. Bradshaw entered the employ of the Tasker firm, the principal of which was the founder of Tasker Lodge of the Masonic Order. Later he entered the employ of Baine Johnston & Co., somewhere around 1861, and after a number of years with this widely known firm he started a commission business for himself which became, as the years advanced, one of the most reliable and reputable concerns of its kind in the country. The business is still carried on under the direction of his son, Mr. Frank Bradshaw.

Henry Bradshaw was in many ways an outstanding figure in the community despite the fact that his nature was of the kind that shrinks from publicity of any sort and was at all times content to let others enjoy adulation and praise.

As a business man, he was keen, capable and actively alive to the best interests of those who entrusted their affairs to his competent management but business was not the sphere to which he generally belonged. The love of art was ever stronger in him than the business instinct and altho art was with him more a pastime than a profession, he possessed talent as a painter that brought him and his work a great deal of enviable notice.

The subjects he loved best were the beautiful landscape sceneries of his native country and many of Newfoundland's beauty spots were transferred by him to canvas with a faithfulness that evidenced the true soul of the artist.

Deceased formed one of the final links which joined the present with the good old days of the past and in many of those former memorable happenings which now form interesting episodes in the Colony's history, he was a prominent figure. He was a member of the well-remembered Tasker Volunteers who played a prominent part in the ceremonies arranged to honor the occasion of the arrival of the Prince of Wales.

In his private life the late Mr. Bradshaw was, to say the least, exemplary. Though quiet and unassuming, he was nevertheless a delightful companion, a brilliant conversationalist and the possessor of a quiet humor that made him extremely well liked by all who had the pleasure of knowing him.

As his life had been lived entirely in that gentleness which is possible to those only whose predominant characteristics are nobility of heart and broadness of mind and vision, and whose motto was as one with the Divine edict, "Good will to men," so his passing was peaceful and untroubled as that of one who sees before him that rest from his labours which is the reward of a life well spent.

Though somewhat impaired in health, the shock in the death of his sister-in-law, Mrs. Bulley, to whom he was very much attached, served to hasten his end.

Only a few years ago, Mr. and Mrs. Bradshaw celebrated the fiftieth Anniversary of their wedding, and the loss now of a beloved husband, after so many happy companionships, falls heavily on her who is left to wait for that reunion in the realms of the blessed.

Deceased married Miss Katherine Bulley, who survives him, while they are left to mourn three daughters, viz.: Mrs. Cleary and Mrs. Dr. Mitchell of this city, and Mrs. R. W. Pidgeon of Halifax, and two sons, Frank W., commission merchant of this city, and Frederick; one sister, Miss Emma Bradshaw of Placentia also survives him.

To the relatives the Advocate tendered its sincere sympathy.

mands more than the haphazard methods we have hitherto employed. We must surely have discovered that for ourselves by this time. If we intend to give spiritual ministrations to our people and meet our obligations generally we must not be content until we have explored every avenue by which the means can be reached. It implies hard work, uphill work, but it is necessary work, and it is a spiritual work.

I do not share the view of those who hold that it is a sign of unspirituality to be always urging upon and instructing our people in their duty to give to God's work as God has prospered them. Human selfishness is only too prone to take all the gifts that God is pleased to give with never a thought of acknowledgement by sharing those gifts with others. We need offer no apology for such plain speaking as we think necessary upon this as upon other obligations of Church membership.

WOMEN'S AUXILIARY OF THE BOARD OF MISSIONS.

The Board of Missions, the Report of whose work will be in due course come before the Synod will, I hope, steadily pursue the objects for which it came into existence. The Select Committee appointed last Synod to consider and report upon "the relation of the Board to the Executive Committee," in its Report which was adopted outlined the character and scope of the work of the Board. Obviously the whole of the programme set forth could not be fully carried out in the time which has since elapsed.

I now suggest to the new Board that one of the most important matters to which their attention might profitably be directed at an early date is the organization of a Women's Auxiliary to the Board, either in connection with women's organizations already in existence or as a distinct organization, as circumstances might lead them to determine. I feel sure that such a step forward is most desirable.

LOSSES AND GAINS.

Since last Synod seven clergymen have left the Diocese, viz. Revs. Ernest Jones, H. F. Blackledge, E. H. Fletcher, Edgar Jones, T. P. Beauchamp, A. E. Legge, and E. S. Tarran. Two Priests have come to us from England, viz. Rev. W. F. A. Stride and the Rev. E. C. Earp, and three deacons have been ordained, one of whom has since been advanced to the priesthood.

There are now seventy-nine names upon our clergy list, seventy-four of whom are actively employed, and five have retired. In 1921 the numbers were 77 and 6 respectively.

DEATH OF REV. CANON NOEL AND REV CANON SMITH.

Since last synod two of our senior clergy—Rev. Canon Noel and the Rev. Canon Smith, both of whom had retired from active work, have died. Canon Noel was ordained deacon in 1864 and priest in 1866. He served at Ferryland, Upper Island Cove and Hr. Grace, having been Rector of the latter parish for about 39 years. In 1895 he became Rural Dean of Conception Bay, and two years later he was appointed to a Canonry in our Cathedral. In 1915 he retired from active ministry but continued to reside at Hr. Grace. For more than half a century Canon Noel served the Church in this Diocese with singular devotion; but it is with Hr. Grace especially that he will be generally associated. There his name became and remains a household word. Upon old St. Paul's he bestowed loving care, in restoring the tower and strengthening the fabric throughout. But his time and energies were always at the disposal of his brother clergy and their people, whilst to the work of the Diocese he contributed gladly and generously the fruits of a ripe experience. The warm-hearted hospitality of St. Paul's Rectory became proverbial. Here the clergy of the Deanery gathered frequently to their mutual encouragement, and here more than one question looking to Diocesan growth had its birth. The Home and Foreign Mission Fund owes, I believe, its inception to Canon Noel and one or two like-minded priests who saw in the inauguration of this Fund a method whereby provision might be made for opening up new missions and in generally extending the Church's work.

Canon Walter Redfern Smith was ordained deacon in 1869 and priest in 1871. He spent 44 years in the active ministry and continued to act as Episcopal Commissioner for 6 years after he had ceased to have charge of a mission. At Greensand, Exploits, Tilt Cove, Trinity East, and Portugal Cove Canon Smith gave full proof of his ministry. It is a striking testimony to the esteem in which his labours both for the bodies and souls of his people were held to find that in one year, 1905, he was appointed Episcopal Commissioner, Rural Dean of Avalon, and a Canon of our Cathedral Church.

Although life should not be measured so much by the length of years as by nobility of service, one cannot but be grateful to God that to these two servants of His were granted so many years wherein to sow the good seed of the Kingdom with patient toil and humble persevering faith. May the Pastor Pastorum continue to bless the Church in this Diocese with men of like courage and single-minded devotion.

DEATH OF LAY REPRESENTATIVES.

Since we have last met we have been called to mourn the loss of several lay-members of the Synod. Mr. J. Withers had been a Lay Representative continuously for 46 years. Whether as one of the Executive Committee or of the other Synod Committees upon which he served Mr. Withers' wide knowledge and experience were placed at the Church's disposal. We can all recall the mental alertness with which he dealt with subjects under discussion and his keen advocacy of causes which were near his heart. We shall miss his presence and his counsel both in Synod and in the life of the community in which for so many years he played a useful part.

Mr. Walter Baine Grieve acted as a Lay Representative for 44 years, and was a member of the Executive Committee up to the time of his death. There are those amongst us who can bear witness to his large-hearted generosity, his affection for his Church and his readiness to give time and effort to advance her interests. And it is an open secret that in the trying days of 1914, and those that followed he spent himself without stint in order to find time to serve his country. Church and community are the poorer since he was taken away.

Mr. J. H. Monroe, another Lay Representative, has also died. His connection with the Synod was of shorter duration than that of the two others whom I have mentioned, but his work for Church and community was of no mean order.

CHAPLAIN TO THE PUBLIC INSTITUTIONS.

Eight years ago in his opening address to the Synod, the late Bishop, in speaking of the work of the City clergy in our public institutions in St. John's said: "It appears desirable that a Chaplain independent of parochial work should be appointed to minister to those of their inmates who are members of the Church of England. I commend this matter to the consideration of the Synod, as the required stipend must of necessity be provided from the Synod funds. I would point out that this is not merely a St. John's affair, it concerns the outports more than St. John's. The inmates of these institutions are, of course, constantly changing, and I find that two-thirds of the patients in the Asylum, and considerably more than half the patients in the Hospital, come from the out-harbours."

Nothing, however, came of the Bishop's suggestion at that time, and it was not until the last Synod that provision was made for a Chaplain's stipend. Meanwhile the need had become more insistent because of the erection of additional hospital buildings, notably the Sanatorium for consumptives, and in July last I appointed Canon Field to the office. The following figures will serve to show that the need of a Chaplain had not been exaggerated and they also supply evidence of the efficiency of Canon Field's work in carrying out this exacting and difficult duty.

Summary of work from July 1st, 1921 to June 12th, 1922:—
Communications made . . . . . 1126
Individual visits . . . . . 7962
Celebrations of H. C. . . . . 215
General services . . . . . 113
Funerals . . . . . 16

The institutions visited are eight in number, viz: The General Hospital, Fever Hospital, Home for Old Ladies, Penitentiary, Poor Asylum, Sudbury Hospital for disabled soldiers, Asylum for the Insane, and the Sanatorium.

EPISCOPAL STATISTICS.

Since last Synod I have held 92 Confirmations at which 1393 males and 1515 females, a total of 2908 persons received the laying on of hands. I have consecrated 22 graveyards or additions to graveyards in the following settlements, viz: Green's Hr., Cavendish, Spaniard's Bay, Sandy Point, Middle Baracholz, Melvers, Curling, Lark Harbour, Belburns, Shoal Cove West, Anchor Point, St. Anthony Griquet Cook's Harbour, Great Harbour Deep, Duggan's Cove, Little Cony Arm, Sop's Island, Jackson's Arm, Westport, Salvage Bay, and New Harbour.

Six churches have been consecrated, viz: Cavendish, Portugal Cove, Sandy Point, St. Anthony, Griquet, and Jackson's Arm and Salvage Bay. Two ordinations have been held at which three deacons and two priests were admitted to Holy Orders.

During the last Synod the Rev. Dr. Mullins, Secretary of the Colonial and Continental Church Society paid a visit to the Colony and spoke to us on behalf of the Society's work. Next year will mark the Hundredth Anniversary of the founding of this Society, and as its work has been of such great advantage to our own Diocese it is but fitting that we should show in some way our appreciation of its efforts.

This Society owes its existence and its successful working entirely to the labours of a Newfoundland merchant, Samuel Codner, "a pioneer in Education for this Colony." At a meeting held at Margate in 1921 to inaugurate a branch of the Bible Society, Lord Liverpool made some forcible observations on the responsibility of Great Britain to give to her extensive colonies the blessings of religious instructions. His words sank deep into the heart of Samuel Codner, and he determined, with the blessing of God, to found a Society for educating the poor of the Colony where he had made his fortune. The Society's operations in Newfoundland were commenced in 1824, and it was then known as the Newfoundland School Society. It was subsequently merged into the Colonial and Continental Church Society.

When the Society began its work here the population numbered only about 70,000 and there were fewer than 20 schools some of them operating only for a month or two in the year. By 1830 the Society had 28 schools in operation.

"Most of the early teachers became Clergy of the Church," and some of them, such as Meek and Kingwell, were amongst our saintliest missionaries.

Acting always as the agents of the Church the Society's teachers have during all these years rendered notable service, and have placed the Diocese under a very great obligation.

After 10 years of service the Society finds its annual income so seriously diminished that it has been obliged to sell out its reserves and even then carries an adverse balance. The grant made to Newfoundland has had to be greatly reduced. In view of all that this venerable Society has done for us, and especially in consideration of its straitened circumstances, could we not next year endeavour to raise a Thankoffering to mark our appreciation of the benefits we have received? I trust that this matter will receive your sympathetic consideration.

THE BRITISH AND FOREIGN BIBLE SOCIETY.

May I crave your indulgence for a short time in order to make a statement with regard to the work of the British and Foreign Bible Society, and particularly to the Branch of the Society operating in this Colony? I feel that I owe to my brethren some explanation as to why I think we may have some part in the work of this Society, and that in doing so we need be neither disloyal to our own S.P.C.K. nor to the Church of England.

Founded in 1804 the Society has been the handmaid of missionary organizations generally. The fundamental principle of the Society is the dissemination of the Bible "without note or comment." Annually the Society issues millions of copies of the Bible or portions of the Bible. Last year it sent three millions of books to China and a million and a half to India. It added ten new languages to its list last year bringing the number of languages or dialects in which it publishes the Scriptures up to 538. Whenever the new language or dialect can be reduced to writing the Society is ready to bear the cost of issuing the Bible in that language, and is content with whatever return can be made by those for whom the Bible is thus made available. For every £1 the Society spends it receives but 7/- in return. The cost of publishing has so increased that a Bible that sold for sixpence, the cheapest in the world before the war, and upon which a loss of a penny a volume was made, is now catalogued at 1/8 and is sold at a loss of sixpence a copy. The total expenditure of the Society last year was £492,188 stg. In spending such a large sum the whole of its reserves disappeared and a deficit of £25,000 was incurred. In the face of the fact that fresh demands are always being made to take up new work an increased income is obviously a necessity. A Society that spends £1,200 a day on printing and sends forth the Bible and publishes the Gospel in a new language every 5 weeks and sends out 9,000,000 copies of Scripture in each year should at least be encouraged.

"Safety First"

The Secretary of the Motor Association has suggested that an editorial on the important matter of "Safety First" would be advisable at the present time. The Motor Association views with alarm the three serious accidents that have already happened to children this season and are most anxious to do all to prevent further like occurrences happening.

The Motor Association suggests that the points to be emphasised are:—

Two accidents are reported this morning.

(1) The absolute necessity of children (as well as grown ups) looking up and down a street before crossing same.

(2) While it is not suggested for a moment that children should not play on certain streets as, however undesirable this may be, there are many portions of the city where there is nowhere else for them to play, it is suggested that all parents instruct their children that when playing in the streets, to keep a constant outlook for motor and other traffic.

(3) The inadvisability of children clambering on or playing with motor cars that are parked. An instance of the necessity of this is given by the experience of Dr. Macpherson—surely a careful motorist—who, recently, upon starting his car after having same parked outside a private residence where he had been making a professional call, heard a scream from a passer by and upon stopping to investigate, found a two year old child curled up in his spare tire.

Let me be more specific to show that our Church would stand to lose from an enforced curtailment of the Society's operations.

The Anglican Communion teaches the Bible in 183 languages and dialects in its world-wide work. Of these it is indebted to the Society for 184. The Presbyterians use 136 versions, Methodist Missionary Societies 102 and others in like proportion.

Among the Vice-Presidents are the Archbishops of Canterbury, York and Wales and more than 40 Anglican Bishops.

The N. F. Auxiliary with its centre in St. John's has 33 branches. His Excellency the Governor is Patron, the Bishop is Hon. President and the Rev. Canon Bolt is President.

As I bring this address to a close I am conscious of the omission of any reference to certain matters which are of extreme importance to the whole Church as well as to our own Diocese. In regard to more than one of such questions I have not felt that this is the time to dwell upon them and that more mature thought on my part and that of others would enable us to arrive at a wiser decision in respect of them. We are living at a time when the conclusions arrived at today are liable to be set aside tomorrow, and we are wise sometimes to heed the warning "festina lente." We have grave problems to face—courage and faith and patience are all needed if we are to act wisely in the face of many perplexities. Let us put aside as far as we may all personal and sectional considerations, and having a will to be helpful we may be directed in ways that lead to the great strength and peace of the Church at the rear.

(4) The necessity of all motorists taking the greatest precautions when driving in back streets or other streets where children are apt to congregate.

There are two classes interested in this: (1) Children and other users of the Road on foot, and (2) Motorists. "Safety First," we are afraid, means something vastly different to each of these classes.

To the motorist it means that children should be kept within bounds, kept on the sidewalk, and otherwise be on the look-out every minute for motors. To the Children and others it means that the motorist should keep his car under such control as will enable him to avoid any accident.

As we are not a motorist, but have some knowledge of the situation in which pedestrians and children find themselves, we naturally take the view that the campaign of "Safety First" is primarily placed upon the shoulders of the motorists. Of course we realize that those who use motors hold an entirely different viewpoint, and naturally enough. Probably we do not appreciate their position to the fullest, but on city roads we do think that some motorists might exercise more care than they do. For instance, two nights ago, a man who is totally deaf, was standing on the side of a road, then moved across the road, and just escaped death by a motor which at that moment came rushing past. Now we contend that if a fatality had occurred, the driver would have been blameable and guilty. We contend that when any person is in front of a motor, the driver of that motor must not assume that his duty is done by merely tooting his horn. He must be reasonably sure that the person knows of his proximity.

We realize that some children are careless, perhaps mischievous, but on general grounds we suggest that they should have the "right of way."

We have already pointed out that the best plank in the "Safety First" campaign would be an amendment to the Motor Act, by which motorists who caused serious injury or death to any person would lose their license for at least a year, also similar penalties against those who speed, around corners and otherwise, this of course not applying to such as doctors engaged in their work.

At the same time, we commend the Motor Association for bringing the matter up, assuring that body of our support in making the streets safe for all.

A Visit to the Poor Asylum

(To the Editor)

Dear Sir,—Monday I wended my foot steps to the Poor Asylum where I was met by the genial and painstaking Superintendent, Mr. Arthur Milne. Before I portray in this brief note the appearance of the institution, I would wish to inform those among them who may not be aware of the fact that it is now over sixty years ago since the building was erected. Previous to its construction the poor were inhabiting sheds or camps which stood on the Barrens. Their condition was not all that could be desired, while occasionally patients from among them were maintained at the hospital, there being no room for them in the camps.

The following copy of a note sent by Governor Bannerman to the late Mr. Edward Dalton Shea, then Acting Colonial Secretary, shows how long ago it is since the construction of the Poor Asylum:

Government House,
June 13, 1860.

Sir,—I am directed by His Excellency the Governor to transmit you a letter from the Commandant of the garrison referring to one from the Colonial Secretary under date May 22nd, 1860, relating to the surrender to the military authorities of the ground now occupied by the "poor sheds" and which surrender the Hon. Mr. Kent wished to have postponed until the new Poor Asylum shall be completed in the fall of the year. His Excellency desires me to request that you will name a fixed date for its surrender, and acquaint him therewith.

I have the honour to be, Sir,
Your most obedient and humble
servant,

W. J. COEN, Private Secy.

Capt. Coen was the father of Mr. George Coen and the late Lady Winter. Robt. John Parsons, Sr., tells us that the poor in those camps did not receive very good treatment. He said on one occasion from his place in the Assembly, "There are forty paupers in the camps; six sleep in a room, each person is allowed a half pound of soap. They drink kiln dried tea with molasses, and get one pound of beef on Sundays. They sleep on canvas cases filled with straw."

Times have changed since then. The poor are being better clothed and kept in every particular than in those far off days. The Poor Asylum today is a credit to the manager, who, since he began his duties a few short years ago, has given his whole attention to the betterment of those under his care. At present the Asylum contains 127 patients, 74 males and 53 females. It requires all the time and skill of Mr. Miller and his efficient assistants to look to the patients' requirements and this they do to the best of their ability. I noticed while being shown through the building that the beds were spotless, the floors are clean as it is possible to make floors in a building of its age, while the patients bear the reflection of contentment on their features. The majority appeared to me to be healthy and strong looking. Some of them are well advanced in years, one old lady, a native of Holyrood, gives her age as 96. She is able to converse as well as when she was many years younger, and when Mr. Miller asked her how long more she expected to live she laughingly replied "that it depended on the kind of food she would be given."

I must thank you sincerely, Mr. Editor, for permitting me the use of your columns to indulge in a retrospect of the Poor Asylum, and the wherewithal to say a few kind words on behalf of Mr. Miller, who, I am sure, is doing all that mortal man can do to make the lot of the inmates as happy as it is possible to do so.

I remain,
Yours sincerely,

A VISITOR

St. John's, June 27, 1922.

Accident on Cockpit Rd. Caused By Motor Car

While coming over the Cockpit Rd yesterday afternoon Mr. Albert George was the victim of an accident caused by a motorist. Mr. George was driving a horse attached to a box car when, unknown to him, a motor car came up behind and suddenly sounded the horn, which frightened the horse and the animal jumped over an embankment taking box car and driver with it. Mr. George managed to jump clear with slight injuries and after much difficulty succeeded in getting the horse upon the road when it was found that the animal's hind leg had been badly cut. The motorist did not stop but proceeded on his way and Mr. George is very angry as in addition to his own injuries he has had to have a vet for the horse and will be unable to continue his work for a few days.

"Just Listen to This"

"I HAVE been after you to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and you always say it is intended more for women."

"Well, that is what I always understood, for I hear you women talking so much about using it."

"Don't you think men have blood and nerves as well as women? It says here that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food forms new, rich blood and nourishes the exhausted nerves back to health and vigor."

"Yes." "Well, the doctor says it is your nerves that are responsible for your indigestion and sleeplessness. Why not try some of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food? You know what it did for me."

"I would like to know of some men in my condition who used it."

"Just listen to this: 'Mr. A. W. Foster, 178 Le Breton street, Ottawa, Ont., writes: 'For a year I was troubled with "nerves," was restless, especially on retiring, and unable to sleep for hours. I was easily fatigued and very irritable.'"

"A friend told me to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and before I had used the treatment a week I was enjoying a good night's rest every night. I gained rapidly in every way and my general health is very much improved."

"That sounds all right." "Yes. This statement is vouched for by Mr. E. M. Ahern, the druggist, and is no doubt correct."

"Well, I will give it a try-out."

G. S. Doyle, Water St., St. John's, Nfld. Agent for Newfoundland.

"Red" Fish

We omitted to state that we were indebted to Mr. D. J. Duggan, Government Analyst, for the report issued by the Canadian Scientific and Industrial Research Committee on the "Red Discoloration of Cured Codfish" from which we gave such full extracts yesterday. The introduction to the report states that the infection does not appear until after storage in warm surroundings or in tropical climate. This points to the great disadvantage of our consigning and sending over fish to the Mediterranean markets, to be put in stores over there, when it would keep so much better in our own comparatively cool climate. Naturally the times call for as good an article of food as we can put up, and the people to-day demand better cured fish than formerly, so that this "redness" is something which should engage our serious attention.

We must eliminate all possibility of loss from this cause, in order to meet the increasingly keen competition of other countries.

Methodist Garden Party

As previously announced the Methodist Garden Party will be held on July 12th, and it promises to be an event of exceptional interest. It will be "all for children," the proceeds to be divided equally between the Methodist Orphanage and the Methodist College Athletic Fund.

The munificent gift of the athletic grounds on Pennywell Road, presented by C. P. Ayre, Esq., has been greatly enlarged by his generous presentation this year of a large acreage extending some 800 feet on Freshwater Road, 500 feet on Pennywell Road, and bounded on the east by Linscott's Lane and on the west by O'Dea's Lane. For three seasons now the Committee have been working on a portion of the property, and have completed the football grounds, a cinder race track, three tennis courts, and the junior playground. Nor has tree planting been overlooked, some one hundred and fifty now adorning the grounds.

The forthcoming picnic is under the auspices of the united Methodism of the city. Associated with the main committee, of which Mr. J. C. Pratt is the Chairman, Mr. P. H. Hudson, the Secretary, and Mr. Albert Soper, the Treasurer, are ten active committees, aggregating a hundred or more of efficient workers. The sports and side shows will be under the direction of Mr. James S. Ayre, who did such successful work in this direction last year. Provision will be made for from 20 to 25 tables and for the accommodation of about 1,500 guests. Tennis tournaments will be amongst the attractions and there is a possibility of some outport teams competing.

The affair is being looked forward to with keen enjoyment, and a day memorable for its pleasure and big with financial results for both Orphanage and College is confidently anticipated. The committees and the workers will do their part; and as mid-July generally brings with it the best days of Newfoundland's delightful summer hopes for bright and warm weather promise realization.

Harvard Men For Labrador

STUDENTS WILL ASSIST GREN-FELL MISSION.

Is the Grenfell representative on the Phillips Brooks house committee on Missions, and with his brother will be detailed to Indian Ht. Labrador.

The College boys dig drains, lay pipes excavate for foundations, build concrete cellars and on the side act as stevedores and lumber jacks.—Sydney Post.

Scotsmen and Home Rule

LONDON, June 15.—Some Scotsmen in the House of Commons want Home Rule for Scotland and intimate that there may be "trouble" in Scotland soon if Scotland doesn't get it. They got an opportunity to say what they thought about it the other day when the "Government of Scotland Bill" was unexpectedly introduced. So also did some of its opponents who were very strongly of the opinion that it was not wanted.

Alexander Shaw, a Scotch member, protested that there was no desire for anything like separation in Scotland. Under the Bill the Scottish representatives in the Imperial Parliament would remain unchanged, but one legislative body would be set up in Scotland to deal with its local affairs.

Sir Donald MacLean, the staunch anti-coalition Scots Liberal, gave the bill his blessing. He alluded to the land hunger in Scotland and told how it had led to the seizure of land there since the war. If they had had a Scotch legislature the land question he declared, would have been settled long ago. At the next election every candidate for a Scottish constituency would have to support the principle of home rule for Scotland. It would give England a better chance to attend to her own legislative business properly.

Colonel John Ward, who entered Parliament as a navy and was promptly acclaimed the handsomest man in the House, humorously put the British case. He said he would support the bill if it would keep Scotchmen out of the best posts in England and induce them to stick to their own business at home.

Dr. Murray, a representative of the Western Isles, darkly suggested that the House should pass the bill while Scotland was yet calm, and not wait to be coerced into doing so by the burning of sundry ancient castles of Scotland. The bill was finally "talked out" while there were still a lot of members anxious to air their views about it. The hope was pressed that an opportunity might be soon afforded for really testing the feeling of the House concerning the matter.
